

October and end of Tuli season report for LVHS!!

October has been a very busy month for LVHS, and phew it's getting hot out there! As the Tuli season has drawn to a close we have been very lucky to have great sightings and even better rides..

Amazingly the cheetahs have been seen several times from horseback with cubs! Only about three months old this is a rare sighting. Never mind being under siege from the entire Majale lion pride at our base camp at FJ! It seems like they have been camped outside our paddocks for the last three weeks. This has led to some pretty interesting moments especially as the young male is quite curious and one afternoon decided to come trotting over to investigate the horses from closer! Well we all felt we deserved our drinks that evening, glad to be alive and watching the sun go down from our stable bar!

As we are approaching our quiet time here, we are getting really excited about our new-tented camp to be used for the first time in November and December. This is going to be spectacular; the site is under three huge Mashatu trees and with a great feeling of being in the middle of the bush. The riding from our new-tented camp is going to be even better than before as it is situated between two rivers, and with the open Pitsani Plains only a short distance away. And don't let the idea of being in a tent put you off this is camping at its best, all set up for you and with lots of attention to detail. New bush loos one per tent and with our new sitting room tent with a library and comfy chairs you can't go wrong!

Come and listen to the wind under the Mashatu trees while the jackals and hyenas serenade you to sleep with only the shadow of your horse between you and the starry sky!!
